Long Day's Journey into Night

By Eugene O'Neill

The Puppet Theatre
Friday 27th and Saturday 28th March 2009

"Eugene O'Neill's autobiographical play won the Pulitzer prize for Drama in 1957. Written in 1940, O'Neill requested the play not be published until after the death of all those involved.

Often regarded as his masterpiece, Long Day's Journey into Night is the account of a family trying to live with one another.

Struggling with addiction, they all constantly conceal, blame, resent, regret, accuse and deny in an escalating cycle of conflict with occasional desperate and half-sincere attempts at affection, encouragement and consolation."
